STUDENTS can learn even if they aren't busy studying (Do you want to come with me to hear Dick Gregory? C'mon.) . . . They can become a part of a whole and partake of entertainment that provides a contrast to taking notes, eating, or sleeping (Dionne Warwick is coming! Oh, let's go.) . . . Participation can become a welcome outlet (First place Homecoming float. Wasn't it worth the effort?) . . . Yes, MSU is more than just books!

SEVERAL MILLION YEARS AGO a grotesque and hairy primate — the product of over two thousand million years of living struggle and change — discovered that the club made a handy weapon. Technology had been born, to develop as man developed, leading the rise to civilization. Today there is not a living entity on earth that is unaffected by the changes brought about by technological progress, much of which has occurred in the last decade. The university is responsible for much of the scientific research and cultural renovation involved in producing such a major revolution — in return its educational methodology is being considerably modified by the feedback in technology. The nature and extent of these modifications depends upon the part of the MSU academic spectrum in question.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF PEOPLE comprise the academic spectrum. Youngest and most numerous are the undergraduates — learning much but accomplishing little, in contrast to the older graduates who learn much and also succeed at academically difficult tasks. The faculty "outranks" both, for they have proven themselves, and have the knowledge and experience for really productive work. Contiguous with the whole are the men and women of the academic services, who apply technology to the improvement of academic methodology. Near the end of the spectrum, but effectively dominant over it all, are the administrators — whose organization keeps the tens of thousands of people at Michigan State from an impossible chaos. These many people constitute the academic element of MSU, each pursuing his own interests, yet all part of a pseudo-living "creature" with veins and muscles of technology and a will of human spirit.

THOSE FIRST FEW MONTHS of a young freshman's college career often determine whether he will succeed or fail, gradewise — and thus point out his entire future course in life. He must have a genuine desire to succeed, some sort of goal to shoot for — and must want these things bad enough to skip a date, a meal, or a leisurely evening with a good novel — just to work late on an ATL theme. If he is willing to do these things, Michigan State will "meet him halfway" with a variety of technical services, such as lecture recordings, audio-visual materials for supplementary study, or computer access time to make problems more interesting — and easier. If he uses these services, and does his work conscientiously, he may soon find himself classed as an advanced undergraduate — whence even more privileges and facilities will be available — and his future will open up.

KNOWLEDGE IS AN ESSENTIAL COMMODITY in any working society. Science may be defined — inadequately — as the knowledge of things and their relationships. A philosopher once said that given the exact nature and velocity of a truly fundamental particle at some instant of time, plus a complete and accurate set of natural laws, a scientist could specify the exact nature of the entire universe for all space and time — though the calculations might be a bit arduous. This is the upper limit to which science can progress — such a scientist could be God — and although such absolute power as it would give unattainable, we must still labor to approach it as closely as possible — thus the university offers a great number of scientific courses and majors for the undergraduate student. Perhaps it is in the sciences that the individual stands the best chance of really shaking the world — of accomplishing something great for the good of mankind.

"POLISHING TOOLS" — becoming proficient in the use of technical methods — is the task of the undergraduate in a technical course. Such tools might be mathematics, computer programming, or clothing design; all have in common the fact that they are means developed to accomplish some definite end. The productive professional of tomorrow will have developed a wide range of technical skills today. Possession of such skills by the professional means he will have more time to be creative and human, and that is what differentiates the average from the exceptional man.

"THE SPECIES HOMO SAPIENS is dominant in planetary ecosystem number three of the star 'sol' located on the rim of the Milky Way Galaxy. The species is characterized by its great sprawling, congested road cities, incessant warfare, and uninhibited breeding habits. The technological level has reached the critical point where technology can destroy the budding civilization — or force it into social maturation." This rather detached viewpoint of our world perhaps places our social problems in the correct perspective, for they are a bit ridiculous — though very real; it also expresses the ultimate primitiveness of our present culture in terms of what can be imagined for the future. MSU undergraduate education in the social sciences takes place not only in the classroom but also by direct experience in society itself, and the students are reacting, as is shown by the existence of the moratorium and the newly formed conservation clubs such as "E-QUAL". Such constant awareness of the great social problems is likely to lead to their eventual solution — the question is when?

ANIMALS DIFFER FROM HUMANS in many ways, but perhaps the major one is the inability of the animal to converse with his fellows. The value of the human ability to communicate complicated concepts and ideas is both practical and psychological; practical, because it permits a dynamic and complex social organization to form, and psychological, since "no man is an island." Such academic departments as journalism, theater, and linguistics compose the available curriculum in communication arts at Michigan State, and when coupled with an analytical and open-minded effort on the part of the student, usually result in a socially well-rounded individual linguistically competent to tackle whatever problems he has chosen to devote his life to.

MSU'S ANSWER TO THE IMPERSONALITY so often generated by a large university is the special college. General programs are offered in a small college living-learning atmosphere, while retaining the advantage of the specialized courses given elsewhere on campus. The student may choose from the cross-cultural liberal arts program of Justin Morrill, the social science emphasis of James Madison, or the science-oriented program of Lyman Briggs. A fourth college, the Honors College, enables the unusually gifted undergraduate to plan his program as he sees fit — he has no requirements to meet but his own — and also gives him the opportunities and privileges of a graduate student. With so many possibilities for individual programs available, the freshman can tailor his projected four-year program to meet most any goals he sets. Whether he achieves those goals is then up to him.

AFTER TWENTY YEARS OF SCHOOLING the student has become a professional, an expert who maybe cannot conquer the world, but who is certainly prepared to suggest a few improvements. University life for the graduate student involves classes, but now he occasionally finds himself on the other side of the podium, and the usual courses deal immediately with his field so that he rarely finds incentive for the major undergrad pastime of sleeping thru class. The graduate's formal educational experience is drawing to a close, but his learning experience has just begun as he finds his seat in the classroom of the world.

RESEARCH is a significant part of graduate education in nearly all the major curriculum available at M.S.U. It not only provides vital experience in the graduate's chosen field of study, but also stimulates intellectual and personal development—and often results in a valuable research report. Michigan State has effectively applied advanced technology in all possible research areas to free the graduate researcher—as well as many other people—from the drudgery that was once inescapable, leaving priceless time and energy for creative enterprise.

Some people view the natural science building with a different perspective. Here's how a graduate student might view it while examining plant specimens in the horticulture gardens.

BOTH THE STUDENT AND THE WORLD benefit from the academic activities of the Michigan State University faculty. Whether using such facilities as closed circuit television, or just the human voice, the faculty applies knowledge creatively to give all willing students a quality education. This knowledge the students may someday use to educate a new student body, or to solve social or scientific problems. Thus the world may indirectly benefit from the academicians' work—but the effects are often more immediate, such as from cancer research or development of pollution control methods. Michigan State University, due to the quality of its faculty and the efficiency of its technical services available for their use, holds a prominent place in the academic world.

STIMULATING THOUGHT AND CREATIVITY in the many and varied areas of the university is just part of the role of the MSU faculty as "teachers." Some make no pretensions about even knowing what the verb "to teach" means, some have a definition, and try to guide students with it, and some are the authority — period. Their methods are as diverse as the number of classes offered, making maximum use of the university's technological services — and their personalities. The MSU faculty's participation in teach-ins, symposiums, and the like, and their willingness to simply rap with the students, reflects the main criteria of any good faculty: interest in the learning experience, and in those who wish to learn.

THE STUDY OF MAN — his mental processes, family relationships, and social organization — is vital to the continuing advance of human civilization. Technology can provide a new industrial process, artificial organ, or nuclear process — but if social goals and relations have been ignored the world will find itself polluted, overpopulated, and in danger of imminent destruction. The MSU faculty, realizing this, are conducting research in such fields as social science, home economics, and urban planning. Such research may someday enable man to challenge a frontier, rather than each other.

ONCE GOALS ARE SET for which society must strive, action becomes a matter of technique and scheduling. "Technique," as its root suggests, is provided by technology, which is in turn improved by the technological research at MSU. Such research may be engineering, exemplified by the development of the computer; agriculture, as in genetic engineering of farm organisms; or perhaps medicine — "organic mechanics." But such a development of technology, though quite essential, must not become an end in itself, existing in blatant ignorance to our higher ethical and moral values. To preserve our present highly mechanized society, industry has established this wrong motive, resulting in the pollution of air, water, and landscape. One would like to ask, is it worth it?

PUSHING BACK FRONTIERS is a productive activity for the MSU science faculty. The output of this "pure" science is used by the applied scientist to directly improve the human living condition, and often to advance technology —thus supplying the pure scientist with better instrumentation, increasing his productivity, and so on, in a never ending cycle. Be the field solid state physics, computer development, or biological engineering, there are bound to be some MSU faculty members conducting prominent research for the good of all.

YOU COULD CALL HIM A RENAISSANCE MAN. Dr. Leroy Augenstein was not only interested in science, but in the entire field of human experience. In a resolution, the state senate called him a "brilliant biophysicist who devoted his life in attempting to bridge the gap between religion, science and politics." Dr. Augenstein expressed many of his ideas in his book, Come, Let Us Play God, which is concerned with the technological and scientific progress that will soon force moral decisions upon us. Are test tube babies as legitimate as babies conceived naturally? With man able to alter genetic makeup, should we attempt to improve man? Who is to define the perfect man? Scientists, by conquering illness and death, are contributing to the population explosion. The improvement in organic "spare parts" may bring about immortality. Who is to say when life should end? A scientifically literate public is needed to make these decisions rationally and morally.

Dr. Augenstein

DR. AUGENSTEIN'S DEATH, Nov. 8th in a plane crash, interrupted a fully committed life. He was chairman of Michigan State University's Department of Biophysics, where his major research interests lie in how the brain processes information and in the mechanisms by which radiation damages biological matter. Dr. Augenstein translated his beliefs into action. As a member of the State Board of Education, he promoted sex education in public schools. TECHNOLOGY HAS BECOME A HIGHWAY for education. New techniques, processes and hardware make the road easier for the academician to travel. The Michigan State avenue most frequently traveled was built and is serviced by the Instructional Media Center. The IMC's vehicles include study carrels, film making, audio-visual equipment and closed-circuit television. In only a few academic divisions has technology been so successfully applied to education as in the IMC.

WHEN JOHN HANNAH LEFT MSU in the winter term of 1969 to become director of AID, the board of trustees appointed economics professor Walter Adams as acting president. Dr. Adams served through the rest of the year while the students, faculty, and administration felt around the world for a man fit — and willing — to be MSU president. From a list including such names as Charles DeGaulle and Walter Adams (who declined "nomination") the trustees finally chose Clifton Wharton Jr., economics expert, entrant to Harvard at age 15, and now the first black president of a major university. President Wharton quietly plunged into his work on the second of January, 1970 — beginning a promising decade for MSU — and the world.

President Wharton states that he is ". . . a man first, an American, second, and a black, third."

BEING OF SERVICE TO OTHERS is the motive underlying President Wharton's plans for the future. "All my career has been devoted to working on the problems of underdevelopment and poverty, and I think a University such as Michigan State University has a long tradition of service to similar problems in the nation and world." In more direct regard to his future policies Wharton commented, "I'm not coming out with any radical changes. Only a fool would think he could take over a large university and immediately change it to his own will. I will be sympathetic to the black student. I won't go in with a get-tough policy just to show I'm bending over backwards to prove to the white majority I was the right choice." Nelson Rockefeller said of Wharton, "He has demonstrated a deep commitment to achieving the kind of understanding needed so badly between young and old, between persons of different cultures, religions, and nationalities."

MSU's new first lady states, "I want to make sure my husband has time to rest and relax and have time for his family."

M.S.U.'S SUPERVISORS are the men of the Board of Trustees. Working with the University President, these eight men decide such diverse issues as allocation of the nearly three million dollars of gifts and grants received this year, who gets what from whom in solving the fall M.S.U. worker's strike, or the shape of the table the board will meet at in the future. The feedback from these actions is mainly criticism—some of it constructive, but much of it rather one-sided. The Trustees, to be democratic, must serve the "silent majority"—but this majority is frequently much harder to hear than the numerous "vocal minorities." And the vocal minorities are people too, often with very real problems. For a given issue, then, who should the Trustees favor, and how much? Perhaps we should be thankful that there exist people who care enough to tackle such a job.

What happened?
Wasn't it Coach Duffy Daugherty himself who said that the 1969 football team would "definitely" improve on 1968's 5-5 record? And wasn't it Duffy who advocated Bill Triplett as possibly becoming the best player at the quarterback spot in Spartan history? What happened? What happened was that Michigan State just simply did not have the kind of football team the preseason forecasters thought it had. State's string of frustrating seasons was extended to three.

Michigan State's 1969 football team did have a championship squad — but it was only for one series of plays — the first one. The Spartans moved the ball down the field in five plays and Don Highsmith barreled into the end zone for the first TD of the year and the fans thought, "Bring on SMU and Chuck Hixon!" State did go on to beat Washington (the score was 27-11), but the Huskies fell nine more times before season's end.

Oops! Chuck Hixon caught somebody in a mixed assignment. It's touchdown, SMU. Linebacker Don Law had a beautiful view.

sawyer

Bill Triplett eyes Barry Pierson. Pierson was a member of a hard-pressed Michigan secondary which had to stop MSU runners too many times for their own good. State gained 348 yards on the ground that day.

So Mr. Hixon and all his passing records and his reputation came to town the next weekend. And State won — it was only 23-15 — but it was a win and all those forecasts looked like they might be accurate and thoughts of a California New Year were in many minds.

23-15. Not an overwhelming victory, but a victory over a passing team and wasn't it Duffy who had said that the defensive secondary was questionable. Two down. Where's Notre Dame?

Notre Dame, the third opponent, happened to be home in South Bend, or more precisely, on the practice field, where grumbling coach Ara Parseghian was regrouping his young squad after Purdue had inflicted its third straight conquest of the Irish. No Notre Dame team had ever lost two games in a row with Ara roaming the sidelines and Ara didn't want Michigan State, of all teams, to record a negative first. State didn't.

The game wasn't televised and that was one problem — State had played well on the tube in upsetting the Irish in '68 at East Lansing. But otherwise the setting was perfect — a beautiful day and a jammed audience of 59,075. Quarterback Joe Theismann and receiver Tom Gatewood destroyed Michigan State, playing catch ten times, three times for scores. The Irish pushed to scores three times in the first half for a 21-14 bulge and then blew it open for a 42-28 win — the most points ever scored on a Duffy Daugherty-coached team. Wasn't it Duffy who said the defense might compare favorably with the great defenses of '65-'66?

A couple of "fleas", but hard-working players for State. Guard Don Baird leads shifty Eric Allen against Washington.

Regrouping to play Ohio State was like experiencing a tornado, then bracing for a hurricane. It seems Woody Hayes never did like the color green. What the Buckeyes did to State that day is regrettable. The Spartans handed the Bucks three gift TD's in the first seven minutes and finished the quarter behind 27-7. At that pace the final score would have been 108-28 and Buckeye fans licked their chops for a massacre. It was to State's credit that it was only 54-21 when it was all over.

Figuring out the Spartans the next week was still hard to do. The opponent was Michigan and the signs pointed to another bad loss. Michigan was a brutal team to run against, yet Bill Triplett opened on a keeper at his own goal line for 27 yards and repeated for 44 more. Don Highsmith ran through and over Wolves. State blended strong running with a less than awesome 1-for-4 passing effort. But Michigan was a 23-12 loser and that had to be an upset.

Next was Iowa — and a TV date. The Hawkeyes had lost their last two games, screaming about the officiating in the process, but they were going to win their Homecoming game, by golly. State led up until the end of the game but not quite long enough as a reserve quarterback threw the Hawks to a 19-18 lead with a minute and a half left, long enough for State to try to pass their way to a win. State lost.

The Spartans had a score to settle with Indiana the next Saturday at East Lansing. For the record it was a 16-0 loss and a record number of boos from a record Homecoming crowd. It was too much for quarterback Triplett, who became flanker Triplett for the rest of the season, he thought.

FOOTBALL

Sophomore Steve Piro started at quarterback against Purdue — and lasted several series of plays. Then third-stringer Dan Werner took over. By halftime it was 31-0 and the only remaining question was how bad the loss would be. Then the score got to 41-0 and it was in the fourth quarter. By this time Werner is throwing footballs all over the field and completing quite a few — including four to Purdue defenders. But then he slips Eric Allen through the line and visions of a great team unfolded as Allen dashed 64 yards for a score, something fans had been waiting for all season long. Then Werner uncorks a beautiful strike down the middle to Steve Kough and here's another score.

That ended it, 41-13, but wait, count it up, Werner has passed for 314 yards, two short of a Big Ten record and certainly a school record. And he has completed 16 passes in all in about three quarters of the game, and let's see, that ties a school record. And what's more, he had several dropped. What if those had been caught? Suddenly the Spartans are a passing team, Werner is a new threat at quarterback and who's Steve Piro?

Good old Northwestern. It is a beautiful sunlit day and before 26,000 dedicated fans, State rips the Wildcats for the eleventh straight year, 39-7. Linebackers intercepting passes, a punt returned for a touchdown plus some strong running and passing sent Spartan coaches into the winter somewhat optimistic for the new decade.

Ron Saul became an All-American at offensive guard on various teams, and Don Highsmith rushed for 937 yards, the second best effort in State history. Injuries to Ernie Tuscherer and Trevor Harris, which were like taking the foundations from a building, crippled the Spartan soccer team in its bid to win a third straight national title. Neither could play in the opening NCAA tournament game, against Cleveland State, which MSU lost, 3-0 in East Lansing. State, as usual, had its troubles with St. Louis, bowing in a 1-0 contest, the Spartans only loss during the regular season. The season opened with three straight wins and then a 1-1 tie with one of the West's top teams, powerful Air Force. Three more wins followed, including a 3-0 triumph over tough Akron, before the St. Louis game. State knocked off Ohio 3-0 to close the regular season with a 7-1-1 record.

It got its beginning many years ago when the Indians played it first and since then, lacrosse has gone on to become a popular sport at many smaller colleges throughout the Midwest. Now it has arrived at Michigan State on a varsity basis for the first time. The Spartans have played lacrosse on a club basis with average success for the past several years, but now it's gone "big time", so to speak, with varsity status attained.

The first varsity head coach is Robert "Turf" Kauffman and he has invited any students on campus interested in the game to try out for the team. It is rough, like football, but then Kauffman is a former football coach. He led the Lansing All-Stars to a Midwest League championship in 1969. But he likes lacrosse better and he's the Spartans' first coach now. They play their games at Old College Field against the smaller, but powerful lacrosse schools of the Ohio Valley, like Denison, Bowling Green and Kenyon.

The 1970 season may begin another era, at least Spartan officials hope, that will be like the winning era that the soccer team has produced since its varsity conception in 1957.

Ralph led the 1969-70 team in every statistical category and was the team's high scorer in every game but three. His 667 points were 66 more in one season than any other Spartan had every scored, Julius McCoy holding the former standard of 601, set some 14 years ago. By season's end the Spartans were playing their best basketball, winning three of the final five games, including road wins over Ohio State and Illinois. The Buckeyes defeated State by 23 points earlier in East Lansing, but a gutty television performance netted State an 82-80 triumph, as Bob Gale tipped in a shot at the buzzer for the difference. State had lost two previous times to Illinois, but won 81-76 in the season's final game at Champaign, with Simpson sitting on the bench in street clothes with a bad knee.

Sophomores Ron Gutkowski and Pat Miller progressed as the season wore on and were playing heads-up ball by season's end. Rudy Benjamin scored 57 points in the final two games to cap an up and down year. He was many times a favorite of the home fans and had the knack of picking up the team when coming in off the bench. He was the team's second leading scorer with a 12.5 norm. As Ralph went, so went the Spartans, but the club won only 9 of 24 games. The 5-9 conference record was good enough for a 6th place tie with two other teams.

The death of coach John Benington left the team in bewilderment as the season started, but new coach Gus Ganakas, John's apprentice of four years, handled the job admirably. Gus still says the biggest thrill of the season was just winning the first game, an 89-85 squeaker over unheralded Eastern Kentucky.

Herb Washington may become a living legend. He may disspell those rumors about Bob Hayes being the fastest human. Herb Washington is really the fastest human, at least according to a stopwatch. Washington capped off a great season by equalling the world's record of :05.9 in the 60-yard dash in winning the NCAA indoor title at Detroit's Cobo Hall in March. He also broke Jesse Owens' 35-year-old record in the Big Ten meet with a :06.0 time, which really isn't too bad a debut for this extremely dedicated sophomore.

Senior Bill Wehrwein had a great winter, lowering his Big Ten standard in the 600-yard run to 1:08.3, winning that conference event title again. Footballer Eric Allen won and set a Big Ten record in the triple jump with 48-foot, 5½ inches. State set a Jenison Field House mile relay record of 3:15.5 in winning a conference title, with Wehrwein, Al Henderson, freshman Mike Murphy and John Mock toting the baton.

As a team, State finished seventh in the NCAA meet, and third in the Big Ten. State lost dual meets to Illinois and Michigan in their only dual match-ups of the season.

Peninger himself was named to the Helms Athletic Hall of Fame during the season. The lone loss was a 17-16 heartbreaker to Oklahoma State that saw the Spartans lose the final two matches and, of course, the meet itself. State also won the Midlands Tournament, and its own Quadrangular meet in December.

Jack Zindel won his second straight Big Ten title at 190 pounds and was named the meet's outstanding wrestler. Thompson and another sophomore, Gilles Gagnon, each led the club with 14 goals apiece during the season.

The 1969-70 swimming season for Michigan State was another typical one—an outstanding dual meet season, but finishing behind Indiana and Michigan in everything—which is exactly what the Spartans did. State went 10-1 on the dual meet season—losing to Michigan and cancelling its meet with Indiana because of bad weather. The Spartans then finished behind the two with 311 points in the Big Ten meet.

Dick Fetters took over the head coaching reigns for his first season from Charles McCaffree. McCaffree had spent 28 years in the head coaches' office before turning the duties over to his long time assistant.

Senior Dick Crittenden was the lone Spartan Big Ten champion, setting a varsity record in the 50-yard freestyle, with a :21.5 time.

Coach Danny Litwhiler and his Spartan baseballers were not satisfied with the 1969 season. The hopes of a Big Ten championship and the right to represent the conference in the national tournament for the first time since 1954 were wiped out in a disastrous four-game road trip after State had won two games from arch-rival Michigan.

The Spartans trailed Michigan 4-0 in the first game of an East Lansing doubleheader, but rallied to win 5-4 and then blistered the Wolverines 18-3 in the nightcap, giving State a 2-0 early conference season record.

But then followed nightmarish double losses the following weekend to Indiana and Ohio State, three by one run and the other by two. For all intents and purposes, the season ended with the Ohio State twinbill.

State lost three of four on its other road trip, two of those losses coming on 1-0 scores at Illinois. So one main Spartan downfall was a failure to win on the road.

State wound up 8-8 in league play, good only for a three-way tie for fifth, while Minnesota romped to the title by four games over Illinois. State did manage to split a doubleheader with the Gophers on the final day of the season in East Lansing.

For the year, State won 24 and lost 17 and placed two players, catcher Harry Kendrick and outfielder Rick Miller, on the NCAA District Four all-star team. Miller won the Big Ten batting championship with a .429 average and hit .356 for the overall season to lead the club. He was only the second Spartan ever to win a Big Ten batting title. Kendrick hit .284.

At season's end, Miller was named the team's most valuable player, outfielder Richie Jordan the most improved and Dan Bielski the most valuable pitcher. He won six of eleven decisioned games and posted a 1.75 earned run average.

The Spartans got a rough-tough brand of baseball from Phil Rashead (20) as shown in this sequence against Michigan. Rashead scored on this play at the plate and left the Wolverine catcher, Pete Titone, in a helpless heap. Titone left the game as the Spartans won a Big Ten-opening doubleheader from their archrivals.

A great fan of Spartan baseball, Acting President Adams rarely missed a home game and reacted accordingly in good or bad situations on the field.

Tennis hopes for the future rest on the lanky shoulders of gifted Tom Gray, who at 6-4 in height, poses a threat to the Big Ten singles championship for the next two years.

John Bufe will be relied on heavily in his junior year in 1970 as the Spartans attempt to come back to Big Ten respectability.

Coach Stan Drobac knew he was in for a rebuilding year in 1969, after losing all but one player from the 1968 team that won nine of 12 dual meets and finished second in the Big Ten. But the tumble downward was a bit severe.

State finished a dismal eighth in conference play, a meet held on its own courts. The Big Ten meet saw Michigan walk away with everything but the courts themselves.

In addition, the Spartans had an abnormal 5-6 dual meet season, and could win only one of seven dual meets on its Southern training trip.

The Big Ten finish was State's worst in history. But there are hopes for the future.

The top player and only one to reach the finals of the Big Ten meet was sophomore Tom Gray, who took Michigan's Dick Dell, the ultimate number one singles winner, to three sets in the championship match before losing. And only two players graduated from the team —captain John Good and Rick Raines. Besides Gray, four other veterans returned in 1970.

Hopefully, 1969 will be remembered as a year that marked a beginning of future bright moments in Spartan tennis.

It was Lynn Janson, elected captain for 1970, who paved the way to the league title by finishing third in the meet after a poor opening-round start.

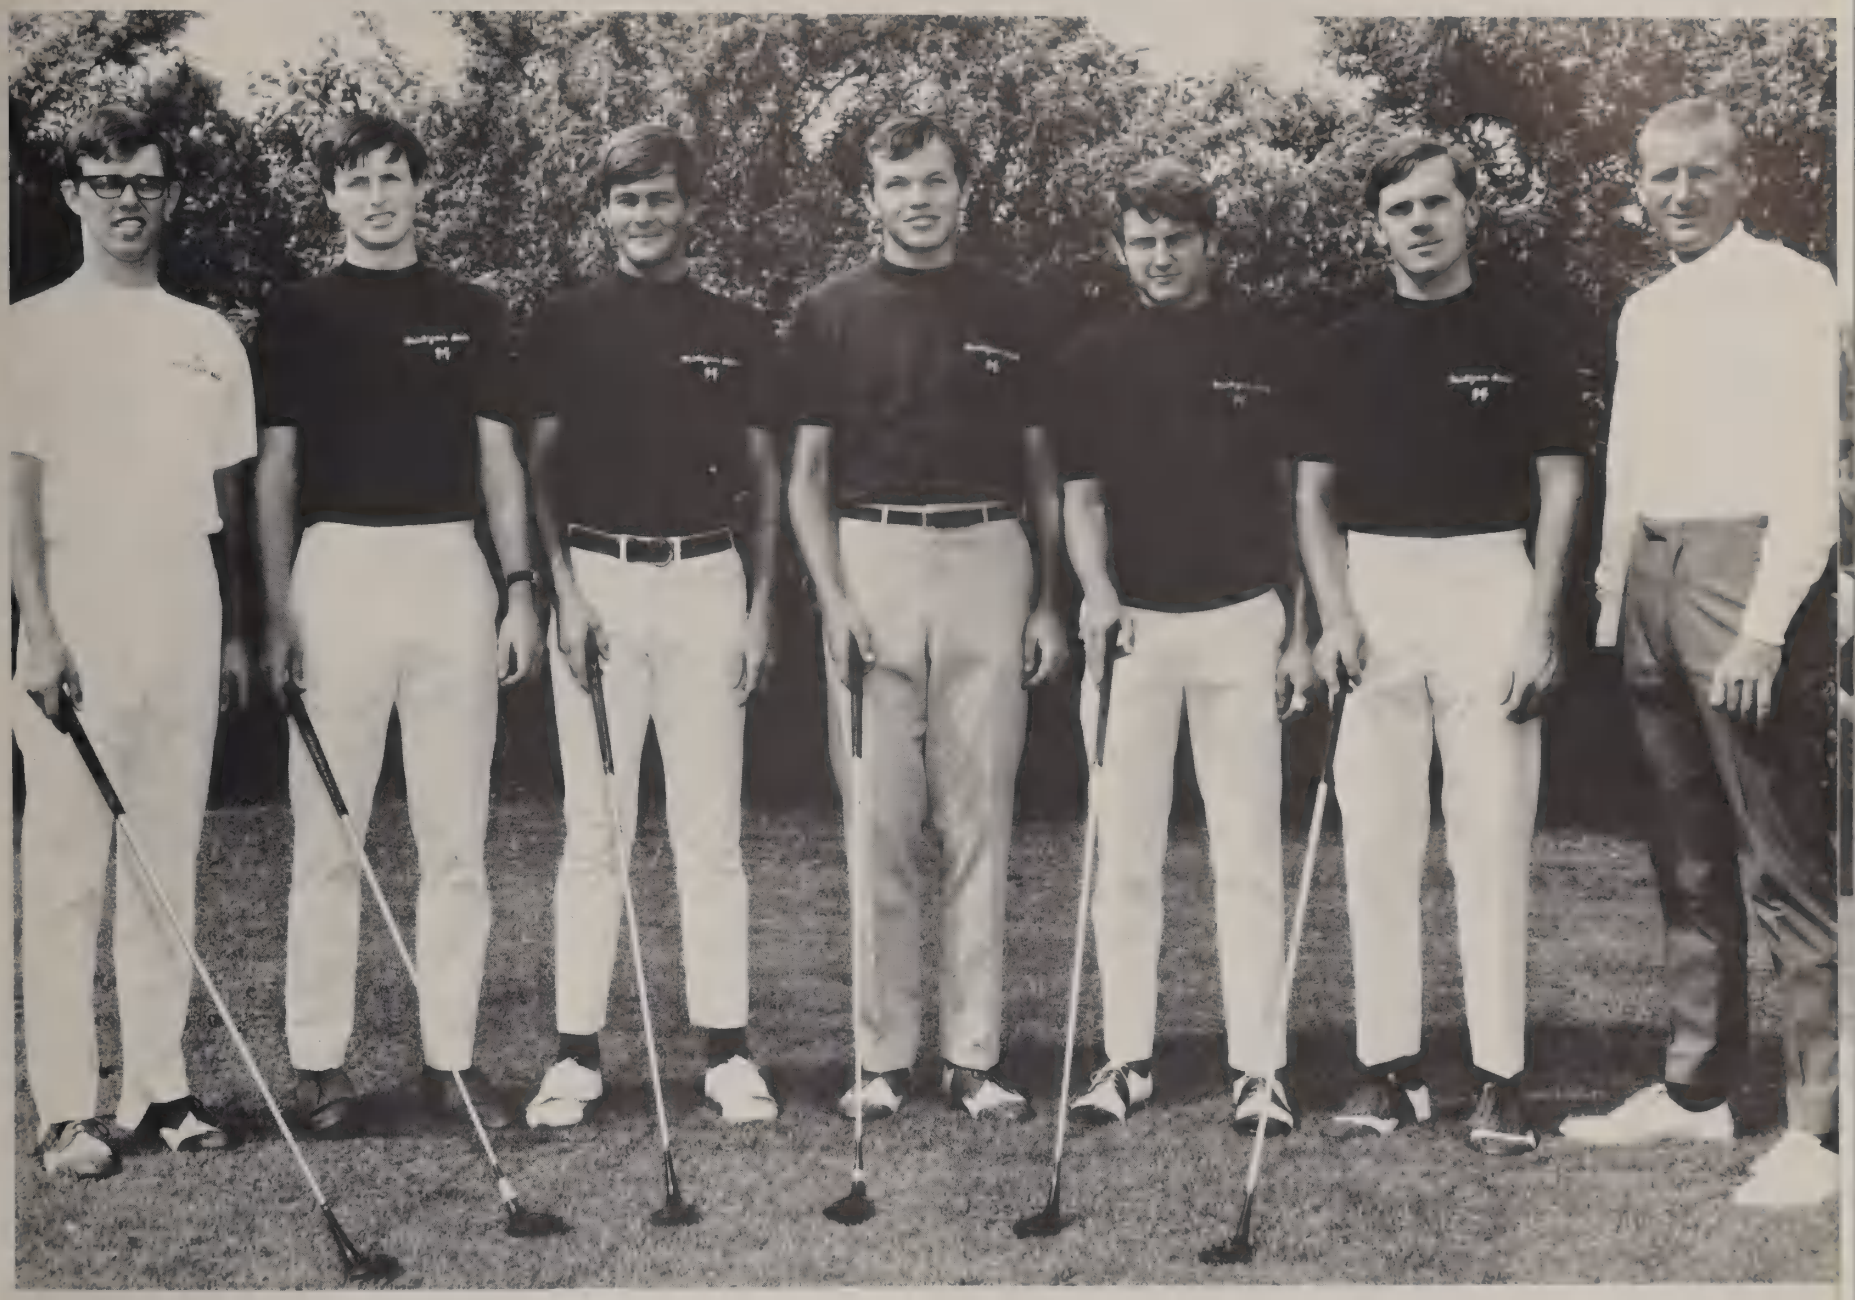
golf

Big Ten champions for the first time in history, the Spartan golf team was comprised of captain Larry Murphy, Graham Cooke, Rick Woulfe, Lynn Janson, Dennis Vass, Lee Edmunson and coach Bruce Fossum.



It can be demonstrated statistically that since Bruce Fossum took over as head coach, beginning with the 1966 season, the Spartan golf team has improved steadily. That year State finished fourth in the Big Ten, the next year third, in 1968 second and finally in the spring of 1969 — first! It was the first Big Ten golf championship ever at Michigan State, making Fossum's team the pride and joy of all spring sports teams. Earlier in the season, State won the Wisconsin Quadrangular and the Purdue Invitational and wound up the season by finishing 13th in the NCAA meet.

But the Big Ten title was the team's hallmark and junior Lynn Janson was the individual hero in the tournament played in East Lansing. Janson rallied from a poor opening day to finish at 298, the third best performance in the meet. Earlier in the year, Janson was medalist in the Illinois Intercollegiate meet. He averaged 73.8 strokes for the season, more than two shots better than any of his teammates. At season's end, he was named team captain for 1970. Fossum has called Janson "the best player I've ever coached here."

Rick Woulfe finished sixth in the Big Ten meet and Lee Edmundson placed in a three-way tie for seventh. Graham Cooke, Denny Vass and Larry Murphy were other contributing Spartans. The next question after four improving years is how does State improve now?

After Bill Wehrwein, Roger Merchant and Herb Washington, little else was of championship quality on the Spartan outdoor track team in 1969. Washington competed in several varsity meets as a freshman, winning the 100 yard dash at the Ohio Relays in an exhibition contest.

State hoped to achieve a first division finish in the conference meet, held in Lafayette, Ind. at Purdue and placed fourth, accomplishing that goal. Wehrwein was a big factor in that so-called success. He won State's only event, the 440 yard dash, in a speedy :46.2. He also finished third in the 220 yard dash and ran a leg on State's second place mile relay team.

The only other Spartans placing in the league championship meet were Roger Merchant (third, 880), Pat Wilson (fifth, 660), Kim Hartman (third, mile), Chuck Starkey (fourth, three miles) and Steve Derby (fourth, 120 high hurdles).

State never came closer than nine points in losing all three of its dual meets and its lone triangular, although Wehrwein did lead the team to a 25th place finish in the NCAA meet.

john benington, 1921-1969

Michigan State's 13th basketball coach was at the Spartan helm from December of 1965 through the 1969 season. His Spartan teams won 56 games and lost 38 and one team tied for a Big Ten championship. The comments of those who knew him and learned of his death on September 10, 1969, typify the man John Benington was.

"We have lost a great man and a great coach. John certainly was one of the finest people I've ever been associated with in sports. He was kind and good, a wonderful family man and a coach who had as his first objective to make better men out of his players." —athletic director Biggie Munn

"He was an outstanding member of our faculty and of the basketball coaching profession." —Walter Adams, then acting president

In a tribute to this man, contributions given to a fund to aide the eleven-member Benington family totaled over $23,600 and were presented to Mrs. Benington at the team banquet on March 9, 1970. In addition, the family received two $10,000 college scholarships. John Benington's family received only a token of what he meant to so many fans and friends.

They don't get scholarships or tenders, rarely do they get meal money or any travel expenses, but they do have fun. They have joined into 21 distinct groups known broadly as "club sports". They are units of students who want to partake in an athletic endeavor that is more than an intramural activity and not as intense and time consuming as a varsity sport.

For some people, they are given equal time with classes. For others, classes are slighted.

For the frustrated high school athlete who was not invited to participate in a varsity sport at State, all is not lost. Michigan State possesses one of the finest intramural programs in the country, with appeal for everyone from the archery enthusiasts to those who thrive on judo. The organized competition, such as the intramural basketball, football, and softball teams, continue to draw hordes of students away from the books. Yet the great majority of participants in the intramural program make use of the informal activities available to every student.

The Men's Intramural Building houses facilities for handball, squash, paddleball, as well as basketball, tennis, and volleyball courts, a dirt arena for archery and golf rebound nets, plus steamrooms and rehabilitation facilities to work out sprains and strains. Still the building is simply not adequate to serve the number of students it must, and the only answer is additional facilities. Longer hours have helped a little, but it is nearly impossible to get a handball or basketball court without a reservation.

Should the proposed All-Events Building become a reality, Jenison Fieldhouse would be the logical solution to the overcrowded conditions at the Men's IM building. Talk has also centered around possible construction of a facility on the east end of campus, on the west portion of the present intramural field. Featured in this plan is the use of the excavation dirt to build an elementary ski slope just east of the building.

Probably the most fun is had as a member of one of the organized teams. Competition is heightened by feelings of loyalty to the team, and the thrill of moving toward a possible championship with every victory. One of the highlights, and probably the most publicized intramural event, is the annual running of the Turkey Trot in the late fall. The greatest prize of them all, however, is the all-sports trophy, which is awarded to the year's most successful team.

Although it seems that everybody complains about dorm food, how do you explain all the apprehension when it comes time to step on the scales, or go home for vacation? Michigan State isn't exactly the ideal place to start a diet, but each year more girls have discovered a logical solution to such problems. Remember that old building right next to the Botanic Gardens? Although for most, the Women's Intramural building continues to serve as a landmark along with the stadium and Beaumont Tower, theWomen's IM has seen more use this year than ever before. While its use still doesn't compare to that which the men's counterpart sees, indications are that the campus coeds have become more weight-conscious and are having a ball doing it.

A UNIVERSITY that encompasses a physical lay-out of 5000 acres and brings together 40,000 people as students, with equally as many interests and curiosities, can produce an immense spectrum of organizations. A university community is supposed to create a learning atmosphere not only in academics, but in people. And not only people in general, but in discovering yourself — the opportunity to try out all of your interests to develop a fuller person. Michigan State can be defined as such a university.

From college advisory committees to art shows, from sports car rallies to dorm government, a student at MSU can develop skills or cultivate new interests, meanwhile broadening his opportunities to meet others who share his enthusiasm. The organizations on campus make possible a unity of spirit and of people — a formidable task in the multiversity's anonymity. The diversity here ranges from local 4-H and Girl Scout chapters to the flying and ski clubs, which teach novices while bringing together veteran enthusiasts, to the many honoraries rewarding scholastic achievement and service, to such specializations as synchronized swimming or playing the bagpipes.

Despite the almost unlimited variety of organizations on and around the MSU campus, most are losing the status they once held as being "registered." The popularity of free rock concerts — unheard of in East Lansing before last summer — and the dissatisfaction with do-nothing honoraries have caused students to innovate and improvise. Volunteer programs have increased to provide an opportunity for service, while the Albatross coffee house on Grand River Avenue with its emphasis on informality has become a popular nucleus of talk and music. The conscious effort toward relevance and meaning has opened new directions as well as started a drift in the older uniting forces, the clubs, honoraries, and governing groups, toward a fuller purpose of activity.

THE STATE NEWS, the only vehicle of information (from campus to international) for many MSU students, found 1969-1970 a year of innovations, disappointments, and often friction. A Sunday edition, begun in October, was shelved at the end of fall term, partly for financial reasons; January brought a major turnover in the editorial staff. One of the most popular features in this year's paper was Dr. Werner's weekly column, "The Doctor's Bag," covering questions on medical problems ranging from insomnia to contraception. Editorials brought a wide range of controversies to the population and urged an end to student apathy. And, as always, the State News was criticized, belittled, and read by MSU students, faculty and staff.

THIS WAS THE YEAR OF RESIGNATIONS in A.S.M.S.U. Student government at M.S.U. had come to somewhat of a standstill. No longer were the compensations enough to justify the large amounts of time and effort that must be given by a student leader. A.S.M.S.U. still brought nationally known speakers to campus in the Great Issues Series. Fall term saw Popular Entertainment have some of its greatest successes with promise of more to come in terms following. A.S.M.S.U. services, such as legal aid, continued to try to serve the student interests and concerns. Yet A.S.M.S.U. seemed to be unable to move much further than this.

COMMITTEES in the various colleges, the Volunteer Bureau, and growing complex councils found more students than ever before applying for a position. With the elimination of most rules and regulations, students were gaining interest in the administration of the academic side of the University community. Surprising support to many student ideas and complaints was found in the academic committees. Major governing groups, especially on-campus, were slowly phasing themselves out of existence. Decentralization was now the key word. Student government at M.S.U. found itself heading in a very new direction (at least new to its present student body). Will this trend continue? Only future students at M.S.U. will be able to tell.

GOVERNMENT: RESIDENCE HALL

THE ROLE OF GOVERNMENT on the residence hall level has changed drastically with recent policy changes at MSU. Liberalization of women's hours and open-house policies have minimized the hall's judicial functions. Many halls have been experimenting with less structured councils, using "ad hoc" committees for hall activities and keeping meetings informal and brief. Attempts have been made by the halls to emphasize the complex council as opposed to a more University-wide structure. The presence of change and innovation within all the hall councils indicates a growing trend toward function and relevance on the local hall level. Whatever the result, hall government at MSU will not remain static much longer.

WOMEN'S INTER-RESIDENCE COUNCIL, the link between individual living units and the University, is composed of representatives from each women's resident hall. WIC sponsors campus activities throughout the year, often with MHA, their male counterpart, but the group's main function is to establish and change policies involving coeds. Among other issues, this year the council has been involved in studying the possibility of expanding the extent of co-educational living facilities in the university's residence halls.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL coordinates Greek living for MSU's 23 sororities by initiating policy changes and guiding activities. A major study of the rush system was conducted by the council this year as a result of the growing concern by Greeks to make the fraternity/sorority system more relevant to the individuals, the university, and society. Through their SCOPE (Student Community Organization through Panhellenic Effort) center, Pan-Hel also serves the Lansing community.

ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS, open to all women students at MSU, aims to create mature, responsible citizens. Focusing on issues relating to the roles and responsibilities of women on campus, AWS sponsored a seminar on abortion during winter term. Also on the AWS calendar this winter was a reception for new MSU President and Mrs. Clifton Wharton. Spring activities for the group included Women's Week and Lantern Night, honoring the top fifty women seniors.

THE AGRICULTURE AND NATURAL RESOURCES COUNCIL, composed of representatives from the clubs affiliated with the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, coordinates club activities and publications. The spring Small Animals Day, sponsored by Ag Council, is perennially popular with Lansing youngsters, who can watch, pet, and even feed the University's calfs, foals and lambs. The group also conducts the Fall Harvest festival and honors outstanding students in agriculture.

THE HOME ECONOMICS COUNCIL coordinates activities of the clubs within the College of Home Economics. Also serving as the contact point between students and the American and Michigan Home Economics Associations, the Home Ec Council tries to stimulate student interaction, involvement, and acceptance of professional responsibility. Many home economics majors enjoy the council-sponsored annual trip to the WIIM Home Economics Conference in Chicago.

THE SENIOR COUNCIL, in coordination with moratorium activities last fall, sponsored a 750-mile "Run for Peace" involving '8 colleges and universities and culminating with the presentation of the American flag to Michigan Senator Hart on the Capitol steps in Washington, D. C. During winter term members served as an advisory committee to President Wharton to assist him in familiarizing himself with Michigan State. The council also holds a banquet spring term to honor the "70 Club" of outstanding seniors.

DELPHI was organized last spring to fill the need for an honorary to recognize outstanding senior women at MSU. Patterned after their male counterpart, Excalibur, the fourteen members of Delphi represent all areas of involvement in the campus community. Sponsored by the Coral Gables, the group meets weekly for dinner there. A variety of speakers and guests such as Representative Jackie Vaughn encourages dialogue on the issues pertaining to the university and society.

TOWER GUARD, both an honorary and a service organization, taps its fifty members at May Morning Sing each year. The women are selected from the top two hundred freshman women at MSU on the basis of scholarship, service, character and leadership. Services provided by Tower Guard members include reading to the blind, aiding at registration and commencement, and assisting at the Lantern Night ceremonies held each spring to honor the top fifty senior women.

MORTAR BOARD, a national senior women's honorary, distinguishes women who have obtained the accolade of scholarship, leadership and dedicated service to the university and local community. In addition to their academic pursuits, the members provide individual services such as tutoring and volunteer work. They also sponsor a needy child and help at commencement exercises. One of the big events of the year and a highlight for alumni is the Mortar Board Alumni Tea.

BLUE KEY, a national honor fraternity composed of 35 junior and senior men, selects its members on the basis of leadership and service in the university. The men accompany orphans from the Lansing area to MSU athletic events throughout the year as one of their most popular activities, and they also work to honor outstanding students through nominations to "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges."

BETA BETA BETA, an affiliate of the largest national biological honorary in the country, encourages research and excellence in the field of biology. Members must be juniors with a high scholastic average majoring in one of the biological sciences, and are initiated at the annual banquet. Tri-Beta hosts a variety of professors who speak to members on a wide range of topics.

CIRCLE HONORARY is entirely composed of women from the residence halls. Members are nominated by their head advisors and hall presidents, and are accepted into the honorary after going through a selection process conducted by active members. These women are the students who have initiated the ideas behind changes in women's residence hall policies.

TAU BETA PI is the only national organization that honors outstanding students in all branches of engineering. On the MSU campus, members assist the Department of Engineering with programs such as hosting interested ADS candidates. As a service to the university as a whole, the members of Tau Beta Pi also read to blind students. Out of 150 chapters comprising Tau Beta Pi nationally, Michigan State is distinguished as having the second chapter founded.

SAILING CLUB offers students interested in sailing a chance to master the skill. Members participate in intercollegiate regattas among the Big Ten schools, and this year club members increased their season by building an ice boat. Besides sailing, members of the club can learn the intricacies of the kayak. Club unity is furthered off water by frequent get togethers.

SAILING CLUB: bottom row: R. Ashton, Treas.; J. Alexander, V. Com.; A. Groves, Com.; J. Caldwell, Sec.; second row: C. White; D. Studer; L. Smith; J. Milne; J. DiGiacomo; P. Gural.

THE BLOCK AND BRIDLE CLUB, an organization for students interested in the animal industry, sponsors a score of activities during the year. Winter term's Little International, enabling each club member to have complete charge of either a pig, beef steer, sheep or horse for one week, closes with the selection of the best showman. During the annual spring horse show, any MSU student may show his mount while the club provides exhibitions of jumping and dressage for the audience.

GREEN SPLASH begins fall term with extensive tryouts for new members. This organization was founded with the purpose of promoting synchronized swimming. The members spend many hours working out routines for their annual extravaganza. Competition for spots in the water show produce long hours of practice for the girls. This year's water show gets its inspiration from Shakespeare. Members of Green Splash also hold clinics for high school swim teams.

BRODY COMPLEX is identified by the motto "Brody is Unique" and by the symbol synonymous with its strong unity, Ma Brody. The centrally located Brody Hall provides three dining rooms, a grill, classrooms, library facilities, counselors, and a University College office. Despite the fact that the dorms all have a two-man setup and community facilities instead of the more modern suites, they have the largest rooms of any on campus. This proves to be a positive factor shown by the high percentage of returning students each year.

Brody cafeteria employs the greatest number of students of any complex, and the grill has the largest volume of business. Brody has come up with many new food service ideas such as Brody Cheese Night and MYOBS (Make Your Own Bologna Sandwich) Day.

BRODY COMPLEX

A friendly atmosphere and relationship exists between the students and faculty. This is demonstrated by the newly formed lunchtime discussion tables where students and faculty can eat and chat together informally. At the Student-Faculty Book Dinner held fall term each faculty member brought a hard-covered book for the Brody Library.

The individual dorms emphasize complex unity through the entertainment functions and projects they work on together. Exchange dinners, the Big Six Conference coed football games and active participation in all-campus events are commonly shared activities. Butterfield, with the help of Emmons and Armstrong, has been the winner in Homecoming float competition for the past two years. The Brody Complex Council, the only one of its kind, and the Brody Cultural Committee are other innovations characteristic of the common effort unity. Informal card games in the grill or dorm lounges and various impromptu activities are a typical sight in Brody.

CEDAR WOODS is the most recent organizational complex we have on campus; it is composed of Holmes, McDonel and Shaw halls. Prior to last year, these three dorms were members of the East and Red Cedar complexes, respectively.

Physically, the Cedar Woods Complex is sporadically strung along the east side of Shaw Lane. Shaw commands the most exciting view of the Red Cedar while McDonel and Holmes residents have available resources in their back yards for sentimental moonlight walks and/or short-cut paths to classes.

CEDAR WOODS COMPLEX

Cedar Woods retains the only all-male living unit on campus. Other potpourri items suggest that besides having some of the most frequent and well-attended mixers, Shaw Hall has in the past displayed an above-average prowess in IM sports; or that even few residents of Holmes know that the township line between Meridian and the city of East Lansing runs down the center of the dorm.

Culturally, Holmes Hall has sponsored for the third successive year the well-applauded dialogue series which features a number of speakers on contemporary issues.

RESIDENTS OF EAST COMPLEX, which invalidates MSU's theory that "no section of campus is more than a 10-minute walk from the central campus area," are said to be the most physically fit of all MSU students merely from the daily trek to HPR classes and back.

Aside from this obviously detrimental factor, East Complex does offer a number of "special deals" to the student who is willing to forego locational convenience. Akers, Fee, and Hubbard have a variety of innovations totally their own. Among these are boasting their own library facilities in Conrad auditorium, the tri-room set-up, as opposed to the traditional suite, found in Akers Hall, the novelty of apartment suites in Fee, and last, but definitely not least, strategically placed and regular bus pick-ups.

RED CEDAR COMPLEX is very diverse in its composition, ranging from Owen, a graduate living hall, Van Hoosen, an apartment set-up for single women, and Justin Morrill, a residential college in Snyder-Phillips, to Mason-Abbott, a quiet, studious, and mature atmosphere that houses mainly upperclassmen. These many separate entities are drawn together only occasionally.

Although Justin Morrill isn't really preparation for a vocation, its emphasis on liberal arts, basically experimental, offers students a modern perspective in learning and a flexibility of programs. One example of smallness within a large university, Justin Morrill's primary purpose is personal growth and self-understanding.

porteous

The grill is a popular gathering place for JMC students.

Every aspect of lifestyle in the complex is experimental. Intellectual, religious, and social values all tend to be more liberal as students seek self-definement and change themselves in relation to other people. The informal group activities include coffee houses, guest speakers and cultural events such as art displays. Guitar playing in the lounges, body paint-ins, and building snowmen in dorm rooms are just a few examples of the many spontaneous happenings. The hyper-active grill and casual mingling of students and faculty express an aura of friendliness and a community kind of spirit.

Owen Graduate Hall is somewhat neglected primarily because so few students have any concept of who lives there and what goes on. Owen operates under the same regulations and university policies as any of the other living units on campus, even having its own student government. The cafeteria set-up is somewhat different, however, since meals are provided on a pay as you go basis. Van Hoosen offers supervised apartment housing for upperclass women. Four to six girls live in each of the 32 apartments. Emphasis on high scholarship is a main aim of all residents.

SOUTH COMPLEX is the renowned home of the "jocks" and is famous for its stimulating social life. Originally it was designed as a complex that would have all four units related to the University College, but it now houses the James Madison residential college in Case Hall.

Despite the fact that each living unit has its own cafeteria, grill, and classroom facilities, the complex as a whole is closely knit with an opportunity for wide interchange of activities between dorms, and much mingling of students. Wilson Hall provides a library and an auditorium for the entire complex.

South Complex houses the majority of MSU athletes due to its close proximity to the IM Building and the Stadium. It is quite conveniently located on campus but the quality of bus service available is at times questionable.

Frequent and well-attended mixers, a unique kazoo band, and ingenious concoctions for entertainment such as the Turkey Legs Contest, are all a part of the fun-loving and enthusiastic spirit of South Complex residents. The main social event of the year is the South Complex Weekend, held in the spring and featuring a hootenanny or talent show along with a large mixer.

The suite-type housing and variety of facilities available may well be a final decisive factor for those freshmen who attend summer orientation, held each year in Wonders Hall.

WEST CIRCLE is as much a tradition as Beaumont Tower or MSU's Sparty. Bearing a long history of female occupancy, the West Circle dorms were at one time the sole residences available to MSU coeds. Today they house primarily female upperclassmen.

The aesthetically pleasing surroundings are a large part of the attraction of West Circle. The "ivy-covered halls" (a la MSU Shadows), the unique structural style, and the existence of one of the few remaining woodland sites typify the casual atmosphere.

IDENTITY IN A CHANGING WORLD is an ever-present problem for Greeks, who agonize over whether they should accept change or cling to traditions. Participation in Homecoming and the now-doomed Greek Week and Water Carnival have long been a part of the Greek image; now people are finding that they are not totally relevant in today's world. And the serious Greek is doing something about it. In our parents' time, fraternities and sororities existed solely as status symbols; not so today. Granted, the social life is there, and still important; but it is involvement which makes today's Greek. The Interfraternity Council made a giant effort at relevance by insisting that Greek Week be a time for Greeks to focus attention on the University instead of themselves. And Greek life is becoming more relevant than ever.

HOME IS where the heart is happy, and belonging is a great feeling. Having 40 people that you can call "sisters" or "brothers" gives a feeling of closeness that many families never achieve. Home is where you can forget to let the mascot — whatever it is — outside at night and still rest assured that someone else has done it. When responsibility is shared, the load seems lighter. Home is the place where you entertain underprivileged children to let them know that they, too, belong. Nothing gives you and your brothers or sisters quite as much satisfaction as hearing a child, or dad, or anyone, say, "You have a nice house." For in Greek life, the house is home.

There's always dancing to be found somewhere when Greeks gather.

Whenever college students get together, there's always someone who sneaks in the forbidden bottle.

SKI WEEKENDS, pledge raids, little sisters, T.G.'s and serenades all combine to form Greek life. These activities and others sound appealing, so you pledge. Now begins the game of matching names to faces, memorizing the Greek alphabet and worrying about making the right impression. Finally, the waiting is over. Phase two starts. The doubts set in and you wonder if Greek living is really for you. But then these thoughts are lost in the excitement of Hell Week, duties, and meetings. Countless students have gone through rush "just for the experience" and discovered that Greek life does have something to offer them: real brotherhood and sisterhood.

COMPANIONSHIP, freedom, lower expenses, cooking, and cleaning — this is what a co-op is all about. MSU has eight co-ops, seven of which are all-men's operations. The one women's co-op, Ulrey House, is ending its second unique year. Begun in the fall of 1968, Ulrey House has been so successful that plans are being formulated for another women's co-op, and perhaps a coed one. Sometimes the co-ops work together — the men doing maintenance work for the women, the women cooking for the men. Sometimes they go out of their way for each other, as when the men helped to furnish Ulrey House last year. Although Ulrey works more closely with Montie House, men from the other co-ops feel free to drop by for dinner. They are always welcome, and cooking for a few extra people is little in exchange for the community spirit that the co-op offers.

YOU PUT YOUR NAME on the list the day after you were engaged, and took it off the list, and put it back on and took it off and put it back on and almost forgot about it. A year after you're married, the Married Housing office calls and you say, "You mean we're in, after only 17 months of waiting?"

You might say that the demand for married housing units far outstrips the supply. It's a good thing that the University keeps the rent low or you might pay East Lansing apartment prices for a subsistence-level flat.

Truth time, though. Married Housing at MSU may not be the best apartments around, but for a couple of young marrieds, the rent is low, they're furnished, your neighbors are in much the same situation you are, and remember the night we all played volleyball 'til midnight. It was a lot of fun.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA was rewarded for its enthusiasm in Greek Week festivities this year by winning the Greek Week trophy for participation in the greatest number of events. Teaming up with Sigma Nu, the girls placed third in the mixed division of Greek Sing. A party for cerebral palsy stricken children keeps the sisters busy in the spring, as does work with Project SCOPE in the community. On campus, the A Chi O's do their share in ASMSU and Union Board.

ALPHA DELTA PI showed the campus and the community that sororities are more than just houses by placing first in the sorority division of the all-University Blood Drive. As official hostesses for the Muscular Dystrophy Rockathon, the women assisted Phi Kappa Sigma members by attracting publicity and providing moral support as a new record for rocking in a chair was set. Many ADPi members are involved with the MSU Volunteer Bureau in areas such as the Big Sister program and tutoring service. A human pyramid contest for fraternities was a new addition to Greek Week sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi members. Judging was based on originality, height, and participation. The sisters also earned a third place in Greek Sing.

Favorite records add a lighthearted atmosphere to the ADPi house.

AEPhi winter pledge class

ALPHA EPSILON PHI membership means empathy with those who haven't gotten a fair shake; and the Arrow project, coordinated by AEPhi national, offers the women an opportunity to assist the American Indians. As their major philanthropic project, the AEPhi pledges hold a Chinese Auction. Each pledge buys an inexpensive gift, which is wrapped and sold to the highest bidder, and the proceeds go toward the Arrow project. Locally, the women volunteer their services at the Lansing School for the Blind's recreation department, supervising roller skating and basketball. The AEPhi's bid goodbye to one MSU tradition by reigning third in the final appearance of Water Carnival, and surged "onward and upward" with another: Spring 1970 marks the third anniversary of the AEPhi Greek Week Art Exhibit, displaying local and student work.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA women place special emphasis on their philanthropic projects. Besides working with various underprivileged children in the Lansing community, the Alpha Gams sponsor a yearly Halloween party for those afflicted by cerebral palsy. What originated as a party for children has now become a gathering of all age groups. Women who have been attending this for years now anxiously await this fun-filled occasion. Scholarship also has an important place here, culminating with a scholarship dinner, during which roses are presented to those who have achieved high grades. Last but not least are activities such as a Junior-Senior picnic, a May morning breakfast to honor graduating seniors, and an inter-sorority breakfast with the women of Alpha Xi Delta.

The Alpha Gams host their Halloween party for the cerebral palsied.

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA emphasize their goals of scholarship, sisterhood, and black pride through such projects as their tutorial program and their yearly cultural project. The tutorial program is intended to provide black students, especially freshmen, with someone to go to should they need academic help. This year's cultural project offered several scholarships to needy students to enable them to attend classes in swimming, sewing, and art at the YWCA. Money is raised at benefit dances. A special project this year was participation in a Christmas party for underprivileged black children at the West Side Drop-in Center in Lansing. The AKA's, along with other black Greeks, donated money for presents and played games with the children. Extra money was used later to provide a turkey dinner.

ALPHA PHI began the new decade with the initiation of a Big Sister program, with "big sisters" for the women coming from among alumnae members of Alpha Phi in the Lansing-East Lansing area. The women take pride in their philanthropic projects, besides supporting their national project of Cardiac Aid. Locally, the Alpha Phi's aid underprivileged children through Project SCOPE, and hold a Valentine's Day party for underprivileged kids from the Tower Garden area in Lansing. In the fall, fathers are given special treatment during Dad's Day, while mothers are treated to a luncheon and witness their daughters' performance in Greek Sing each Spring. Party activities for the Alpha Phi's are culminated with the formal term party each winter.

ALPHA XI DELTA women were welcomed back to 520 Linden fall term by a new housemother in a fully remodeled home. Philanthropically, the Fuzzies cooperated with the March of Dimes in their drive for funds by canvassing the Greater Lansing area. An Alpha Xi pledge project was sending "care packages" to GI's in Viet Nam for Christmas, and the girls were delighted when they received a warm thank you from a private in the group. This year, during the Christmas season, a dinner was held in honor of the busboys, featuring the red-carpet treatment: wine (each busboy received a bottle of Seagram's for a gift), women (the Fuzzies), and song (Alpha Xi renditions of Hanukkah songs). The presentation of a diamond for the quill of the most outstanding active member was a high point of the year.

CHI OMEGA sorority kicked off the '69-'70 school year with a football game for underprivileged children. Philanthropy has an important place here, as the Chi Omegas joined people all over the nation in the annual ALSAC drive. The women help out in local projects too, sponsoring a Christmas party for the pediatrics floor at Sparrow Hospital. On campus, the Chi O's combined ingenuity and hard work to come up with a float that placed first in Homecoming. New faces bring new ideas, and the Chi O's look forward to innovations in the future as more girls move into the larger house, now in its second year.

DELTA DELTA DELTA women take special pride in their scholastic achievements, placing among the top five sororities academically. The Tri-Delta yearly service project provides a $300 scholarship each year to a needy person with good grades; this year's project involved selling "pop-up" stationery to finance the scholarship. The Tri-Delts also teamed up with Phi Kappa Tau this year to treat children from the Lansing School for the Blind to a day of tobogganing and games. Winter 1970 also brought a new housemother, welcomed with candlelight ceremonies.

DELTA GAMMA, along with the Gamma Phi Betas, organized the Powder Puff football game several years ago to be held annually on their Dad's Day. It has since grown much in popularity and become one of the highlights of the year for the DG's. A special highlight of 1969 was the achievement of second place in Greek Sing. The women make a special project of aiding the blind by reading to them on campus and holding a Christmas party at the Michigan School for the Blind. Their "steak and beans" dinner each term encourages the DG's to maintain a high scholastic average.

DELTA ZETA women were honored at last year's annual State Day convention when they received an award for having the most improved scholarship among the nine Delta Zeta chapters in Michigan. Delta Zetas also won top honors on campus as they worked with Phi Kappa Psi fraternity to produce "The Funny Clown", their first-place float for MSU's last Water Carnival. Living near eight fraternities provides inspiration to hold many parties, and an annual Christmas party to honor busboys, complete with Santa Claus. Volunteer work in the MSU Speech and Hearing Clinic enables the DZ's to support their national philanthropic project.

Kappa Deltas trim their Christmas tree.

KAPPA DELTA sorority looks forward to greater unity in the future, as a result of a new addition to their house which increased its capacity from 34 to 51; with more girls able to live in the house, a feeling of closeness prevails. Kappa Deltas emphasize service in all areas, and in the spring, they helped local senior citizens do their "spring housecleaning". Kids receive special treatment on Kiddies day, and at a Christmas party for orphans. The women are also prominent in Greek and on-campus events, receiving a first place award for their performance with Delta Chi in Greek Sing '69.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA, with the dawning of a new decade, found the unity of sisterhood being strengthened while striving for individual perspective. With pride the Kappa Kappa Gamma's shared happy moments as Sandy Gillespie became first Miss MSU, then went on to reign as Miss Michigan. While campus activities are important, the women also support rehabilitation projects. The alumni organization works with the Kappa's in an effort to aid mentally retarded children, helping the women of 605 M.A.C. to develop an awareness of togetherness in helping others.

PHI MU women make a pledge of Hope for a better world. The women were busy last spring making and selling feather flowers on campus to benefit project Hope. Phi Mu's are also committed to such efforts as SCOPE, which benefits local youngsters, and a Valentine's party for Lansing underprivileged children. There are also numerous opportunities for just having fun, for instance: an annual Dad's Day, a Mother's Luncheon, the formal Spring party, the Winter costume ball, candlelight dinners, serenades, and firesides. Phi Mu's consistently attain high scholastic honors and representations in many campus honoraries and activities.

PI BETA PHI women joined with the men of Delta Tau Delta this year in sponsoring a new Christmas program. Although interested in maintaining the Christmas spirit, this program stressed the desire for world peace with the theme, "Sing for Peace". The Pi Phi sisters are also supporting a young Indian boy and corresponding with him monthly. Serenades, Friday night "firesides", exchange dinners, and annual term parties are only a few of the many activities reflecting the spirit and unity of Pi Beta Phi.

SIGMA KAPPA enthusiasm ran high this year, giving rise to activities which range from Homecoming to working with underprivileged children. Each term the house works with the members of the Ingham County Rehabilitation Center as part of its gerontology program. On the social side, traditional events each year include the pledge slumber party and the Junior-Senior Picnic to honor graduating seniors, as well as a scholarship dinner held each term. Favorite events within this chapter include a Father's Day football game and dinner in the fall, and a Mother's Day in the spring.

The ZTA's can boast of such accomplishments as being all-sorority baseball champs and winning the Sammie Tricycle Race for the second consecutive year. High spirits and intense rivalry prompted the girls to paint the Michigan rock green at Ann Arbor in the fall. The ZTA's host a party each spring to benefit cerebral palsy victims, and a "low-rent" party, complete with Salvation Army clothes, for the pledges.

ALPHA GAMMA RHO, the only agricultural fraternity on campus, recently played host to the officers of seven other AGR chapters from throughout the U. S. for an annual Officers Training Seminar. Last year the brothers initiated their Little Sister Organization, the Rho-mates. Also new to their membership is their dog and mascot, Tau. AGR has moved forward with improved scholastics, enthusiastic intrafraternity sports teams, and a great social program. The brothers feel they are accomplishing their purpose, "To make better men."

THE BROTHERS OF ALPHA KAPPA PSI, one of the largest professional business fraternities, are proud of their efforts to create an opportune blend of professional and social activities. Many different aspects of the business world are highlighted throughout the term by guest speakers invited to the weekly meetings. The brothers also leave the campus in their professional activities, Chicago being the destination of this year's week long field trip. Last year, the AKPsi's donated their time to cleaning and repairing the Lansing Boy's Home. A formal dinner dance in spring culminates each year with scholastic and honorary awards given to the brothers.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA, active in almost all inter-fraternity sports, claimed both the baseball and basketball championships this year, and placed among the top five contenders for the All-Sports Trophy. The ATO's work for muscular dystrophy by collecting donations in the Lansing area. ATO's are also very active socially, beginning fall term with a campus-wide Welcome Week party, co-hosted by Kappa Alpha Theta. "Grad Day" is held in the spring to honor alumni, and a "Lady and the Tramp" party is thrown in jest, just for the brothers' own fun.

DELTA CHI men are a team, and they go all out to enjoy life. Their efforts to be top musicians paid off when their performance with Kappa Delta sorority earned them first place in Greek Sing. A paradox of diversity and unity chacterizes the Delta Chi's. The men placed among the top ten fraternities in both academics and athletics, and finished fourth in overall grade point. Delta Chi's also took part in student government, serving on various committees around campus, including Senior Class Council. Even with the varied interests of the brothers, however, internal unity is still the strong point of Delta Chi.

DELTA SIGMA PHI formed the Little Sisters of the Nile five years ago. Now the two groups working together see a lot of action. The girls made and sold clay dolls on campus to raise money for the Beekman Center, a mental rehabilitation institution. Together with men they decorated the Delt Sig house at Christmas in preparation for a party for ADC children. The Little Sisters offer a Saturday brunch for their big brothers each week and the men host a TG for their sisters. Just for the men, though, is the annual tug of war with the Phi Tau's held each spring on opposite banks of the Red Cedar.

DELTA TAU DELTA, the first fraternity on campus, is proud of its tradition to maintain its ideals of excellence. The Delts combine an active social life with serious participation in the university and the community at large. While being an internally tight unit, diversity in style and interest has long been a trademark of this fraternity. Brothers are found participating in events ranging from varsity sports to student government. Scholarship and athletics remain integral parts of this fraternity as reflected in their annually high scholastic rank and perennial contention for the All-Sports trophy.

DU Victory Bell

DELTA UPSILON fraternity's victory bell has been tolling Michigan State's points at football games since 1953. Members of Delta Upsilon have distinguished themselves in sports by winning the all-fraternity football and hockey championships this year. DU's also placed second in the mixed division of Greek Sing with Delta Gamma sorority. Aiding the brothers with activities, rush, and moral support are the Little Sisters of the Seven Stars. The brothers feel that open and clearly stated principles are the best basis for a long-lasting fraternal life, and are proud of the fact that no other fraternity practices a code of non-secrecy.

FARMHOUSE is a fraternity of members from various home backgrounds who represent each college in the University. Scholarship is the main objective of the brothers, which enabled them to achieve the honor of being Summa Cum Laude for the 1968-69 year and first in GPA among the fraternities. Also active in University events and athletics, FarmHouse captured the all-fraternity handball championship this year. Through a democratic living unit, in which members exercise the principles of self-government, FarmHouse assists and develops leaders of men.

Christmas party for orphans

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA men emphasize service projects. These include maintaining support of a Korean child, taking boys from the Boys' Training School to athletic events on campus, an annual Christmas party for children from a Lansing orphanage, and washing all the campus police cars. New this year was their "kidnapping" of sorority presidents and housemothers. Ransom was paid by the sororities to redeem the abducted and the money given to needy families. Last year the brothers collected fraternity championships in basketball, swimming, and tennis, also placing first overall in fraternity intramural sports. Lambda Chi Alpha once again hosted the annual Junior 500, the largest single fraternity sponsored event in the world.

PHI GAMMA DELTA entered its second decade on campus as one of the strongest and most active fraternities, using last year's Greek Winter Weekend championship and a new house at 239 Oakhill as a stepping stone. The Fijis added three new awards to their trophy case with a first place in Homecoming 1969 with Chi Omega sorority, second place in the final Water Carnival show with sister-sorority Kappa Alpha Theta, and the fraternity intramural bowling title. Epsilon Lambda of Phi Gamma Delta is proudest of its achievement in the area of graduate relations. The chapter was the 1969-70 recipient of the Horace L. Brightman Award for best alumni relations in the international fraternity. Proving that Phi Gamma Delta is "not for college days alone," the Fijis' social calendar revolves around the traditional Fiji Island spring term party, the Purple Garter Homecoming party, and the "Frank Norris Pig Dinner", an annual stag party.

Rapping at the Phi Psi house

PHI KAPPA PSI fraternity underwent a period of innovation and change during 1969-70. The men of Phi Psi have realized that the days of the old fraternity are dead, and have spent this past year in attempting to make themselves relevant to the university and society at large. The greatest strides have been in the area of pledge education; in these days of individualism, the Phi Psi's have tried to tell it like it is to each man that has come to their door. The Rock still stands proudly in front of the house, not as a sign of complacency, but as a sign of looking forward to the future.

Sammies, famous for their annual Tricycle Race each spring term, worked in conjunction with Phillips Hall to place first in MSU's final Water Carnival. The quarter-million dollar structure gave them the best in off-campus housing and a permanent home. The momentum of moving into the house also carried them to progress academically, athletically, and socially. This progress showed in the men's participation in all facets of campus activities and a renewed vigor in the fraternity. Their enthusiasm in Greek Week was rewarded by winning second in participation and third in Greek Sing. Sigma Nu also combined efforts to capture fourth in All Sports. The year proved to be one of the most rewarding in the history of the fraternity.

ASHER HOUSE stressed "reaching out" as a 1969-70 goal, rather than serving just its own members. Joining forces to help the MSU Volunteers, they sponsored frequent activities with underprivileged children in Lansing. These included trick-or-treating on Halloween, trips to the zoo during the fall, and distribution of over 100 pairs of much-needed socks at a Christmas party for the children. Asher members have supported an orphan child in India for the past four years. During the past year, Asher won top honors in the canoe race. Checking out in McDonel grill.

Do you delight in a total lack of female companionship? Does the prospect of sponsoring a canoe race down the Red Cedar give you a sense of masterfulness? Are you fun loving enough to escort an adopted third grade class on field trips? Would you break down and wear a costume to a Halloween party with your sister dorm? You say yes? EAST SHAW

East Shaw and their sister dorm join in taking a class from Cedar Street School on a field trip.

DELTA SIGMA THETA women exhibit a sincere spirit of charity by reading to blind students, sponsoring a Christmas party for ADC children, collecting toys for an orphanage at Christmas, and giving food and clothing to needy families at Thanksgiving. Besides devoting many hours to philanthropic activity, the pledge club is involved in producing a television program. This fall Delta Sigma Theta held the "Ice Breaker," the first annual dance of the year for black Greeks.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA, founded at DePauw University in 1870, experiences their one hundredth year of active participation in the Greek system this year. Their centennial project, to mark the event, is the provision of a "half way house" to aid foster children. The Thetas also work in conjunction with their National Headquarters for the benefit of the Institute of Logepedics in Kansas, which corrects speech problems. Participation in on-campus events found the Thetas teamed with the Figis to earn second place in Water Carnival last spring.

PHI GAMMA NU represents the youngest and most rapidly growing sorority on the campus of Michigan State. Their expanding curriculum presently consists of a fall term theatre party, a senior banquet in the spring, and acting as the official hostesses for activities in the College of Business. A concern for the underprivileged motivated the girls to sponsor an orphan in Korea and to join Delta Sigma Pi in a Christmas celebration for Lansing-area children.

FOR SIGMA DELTA TAU, this year became a milestone in togetherness as the girls worked to convert a former fraternity house into a feminine atmosphere of comfort and beauty for their own residence. Along with the many hours spent in redecoration, the SDT's tutor at the Boy's Training School in Lansing and have recently included their services in aid to the Listening Ear program. Outstanding sisters are active in Pan-Hel, ASMSU, and several honoraries.

BETA THETA PI, a socially active fraternity at MSU, highlights their calendar by co-sponsoring Greek Winter Weekend with neighbors Delta Sigma Phi every year. The men of the "ski-lodge," as their modern-structure house is commonly known on campus, also participate in IM sports and other strong Greek traditions. Sixth on campus scholastically, the Betas are also concerned and serious students.

DELTA SIGMA PI, one of the outstanding professional fraternities in commerce and business administration, stresses civic and professional activities as well as the social. Their well rounded list of activities include tours of some of the major corporations, inviting speakers from various occupations, regional and national conventions, and an annual Christmas party for orphans. The highlighting social event of the year for the members is their Rose Dance, held in conjunction with the National Rose Queen Contest in spring.

PHI DELTA THETA'S annual Frisbee Tournament continues to grow larger every year. Another highlight of the season is a trip to a Tiger baseball game with a bus rented for the day by the brothers. Outstanding members in Phi Delts include Mr. MSU, homecoming chairman, and president of the Union Board and Great Issues. In athletics, the Phi Delta Thetas were IM golf champs last spring.

PHI KAPPA TAU wishes to take this opportunity to urge an end to the war in Viet Nam . . . an obvious prerequisite to brotherhood for everyone.

Viecelli, J. Lansing, G. McPherson, J. Pell, M. Ridder.

PI KAPPA PHI illustrates a brotherhood of scholarship and social activity. Fall term was highlighted by "Founders Day," the first national gathering of the fraternity. The biggest annual event of the year is the Rose Ball, a formal party given by the pledge class for the actives. A rose queen is chosen to reign for the year, participating in various campus pageants. The Little Sisters of the Rose were founded to help with certain activities and the reaction from the brothers is "Fantastic group!"

PSI UPSILON, Michigan State University's oldest fraternity, stresses leadership and diversification among its members. Prominent positions held by several of the brothers included officers of ASMSU, IFC, University programs, and chairmanships of several student advisory committees. Five Honors College members and one of the highest fraternity grade points manifest the academic achievement of the Psi U's. And to round out their activities, the brothers promoted a highly successful Kiddies Day in the spring.

PSI UPSILON: bottom row: W. Harrison, Treas.; M. Stevens, Pres.; M. Warhurst, Housemother; D. Grimaldi, Sec.; S. Sawyer, V.P. second row: R. Fry, M. Reinert, W. Mosher, D. Gregg, J. SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON is rapidly becoming The Team to challenge in the Junior 500 held each spring. They have established their mark of being perennial winners of the event, taking first place again this year. Another of their list of consistent winnings seems to be emerging through the SAE's competition in the Charity Bowl against the ZBT's held each fall to aid the Leukemia Fund. The brothers carry out their good will program by holding a Christmas party for underprivileged children.

SIGMA CHI, whose Sweetheart Song is probably the best known of all fraternity songs, have instituted their own Little Sister organization this year with 35 charter members. Since Water Carnival is now an event of the past, the men are working to make their Derby Day a spring highlight to replace it. Athletically, the Sigma Chi's prove to be perennial contenders for the All Sports Championships, well on their way this year by already claiming the paddleball championship in the fall.

SIGMA CHI: bottom row: W. Pratt, Treas.; L. Perry, Sec.; D. Carney, Pres.; H. Hunt, Housemother; G. Peters, V.P.; J. Cooper, D. Dale. second row: R. Zappla, H. Oyer, P. Anderegg, H. Broadman, T. Halbert. fifth row: C. Tanner, S. Rasor, D. Havrilla, C. Hall, B. Van Oosterhout, J. Jackson, J. Cole.

TAU DELTA PHI, celebrating their fifth year on campus, boasts a short but active history, with one-third of the fraternity involved in ASMSU. A special addition to the group came this year with "The Little Sisters of the Pyramid," who are representative of every sorority and residence hall on campus. Displaying their athletic prowess, the Tau Delts also won the fraternity football playoffs in the fall.

THETA DELTA CHI, young, strong and growing, has come a long way since its colonization days just five years ago to be one of the outstanding fraternities on campus today. Already having many "firsts" the Theta Delts placed among the top contenders for the All-Sports Trophy this year. They also claim the first little sister organization active in the MSU community.

THETA XI was established three years ago as a small social club, growing to a colony, and finally attaining fraternity status this year. Working for unity and brotherhood, the members made a composite effort on their trip to Washington on November 15th and heartily supported the anti-war moratorium. In the social realm, the Theta Xi's proved to be men of excellent taste when they sponsored Miss Shirley Metcalf for the 1969 Homecoming Queen.

THE MEN OF TRIANGLE FRATERNITY hold a common academic bond evolving from the disciplines of engineering and science which they believe to be one of the most beneficial aspects of their fraternal lives. The brothers are consistent in both scholastic and social achievements as exemplified by their impressive composite grade average and the high rating in Homecoming float competition which they earn each year.

TRIANGLE: bottom row: W. Anderson, Treas.; D. Bergbreiter, V.P.; A. Brown, Housemother; C. Rothhaar, Pres.; B. VerWest. second row: W. Horton, R. Erickson, A. Williams, W. Seifert, J. Nelson, A. Kaufman, S. Kaufman, R. Rumsey, K. Lafer.

ZETA BETA TAU, boasting the largest pledge class on campus this year, also placed second in all-university bowling and became the university flinging champs. The second annual charity football game, co-sponsored by Sigma Alpha Epsilon with proceeds going to ALSAC, was successful as the biggest fund-raising drive on campus.

BETHEL MANOR, established in 1942 as a campus center for Spartan Christian Fellowship, is a cooperative men's living unit which emphasizes discipleship training in the context of the Christian community. Bible studies, seminars, prayer meetings, and sensitivity groups are employed, and each person is encouraged to discover and develop his own strengths as he seeks to know Christ and make Him known.

BETHEL MANOR: bottom row: D. Schuitema, V.P.; W. Rogers, Pres.; D. Piper, M. Piper, J. Piper, Housemother, J. Hicks, F. Moore, Sec. second row: A. Woelzlein, R. Todd, K. Akies, M. Huntington, L. Foster. third row: P. Moerdyk, R. Thomas, R. Rottschafer, L. Krocz, R. Weesies.

THE WOMEN OF MARY MAYO HALL found their work with Cedar Street School fourth graders fulfilling in more ways than expected this year as some of the coeds made their first trip to the State Capitol with "their" class. Hall residents have also put on plays for the children, and as a special "thank you" from their adopted class, they were invited to the school's annual Christmas party.

THIS YEAR YAKELEY HALL centered attention on the Westside Action Center as the women participated in volunteer work to help Lansing's underprivileged. A Thanksgiving contest in the hall provided the center with a turkey, and food and clothing drives have also been held by the coeds. Visits from the children are a refreshing change from the traditional quiet of an upperclass hall.

Do you have sophomore standing or above? Would your academic performance compliment that of a dorm interested in maintaining a high scholastic standing? The aspect of apartment living as well as the convenience of on-campus housing appeals to you? You'd treasure with TLC a little item known as a key with which you could gain entrance into your dorm? Do pot-luck dinners (home-made, naturally) make your mouth water? Would you prefer an atmosphere of complete femininity and individual responsibility to that of the traditional dorm? You say yes?

You're 22 and never been kissed? You're an international student without an international friend? You'd find an Arab-Israeli panel discussion fascinating (who wouldn't?) An "international night," complete with costumes, native trinkets and entertainment, would tickle your "US of A" curiosity? You can't afford a bus pass and have flat feet? A sun porch would nicely supplement all your spring term activities? You're a grad student with a definite housing deficiency? You say yes?

specifications: The 1970 Wolverine is printed on 80 lb. Warren's Lustro Dull with the introduction printed on 100 lb. Warren's Falmouth stock. The body type and headlines are set in News Gothic medium and bold. The end sheets and septum are 65 lb. Teton Blue cover stock. The cover is dark blue buckram with white applied lettering. Special photographic processing for division pages was done by John Brubaker. Additional photo credits: brubaker 1, 2-3, 13, 34-5, 124-5, 226-7; porteous: 78-9; welti: 194-5.

MSU has seen a lot of changes in 1969-70—a new president, the start of a medical school, a new focus on minority students and community services and a growing concern with the issues that affect students and faculty alike as citizens. Now that all the work is over, I suspect that trying to squeeze all of Michigan State between two covers is an impossibility. I hope we have managed to picture—with some accuracy—the mood and the people here and now.

This year and this job have been demanding, at times frustrating, but, finally, rewarding. And part of the reward has been for me the opportunity to work with a wonderful crazy bunch of people . . . . Bru, I know I could never have put this book together without you—your work, your ideas, and most of all your willingness to listen. Thanks, Phil, for all your help and your knowledge and your calm, and Jack for somehow managing to maintain an illusion of order in one corner of the office. To Mary, Rondy, Tim, Doug, Lorna, Bunny, Ellen, and the rest of the staff, for your time and your headaches, your lack of sleep and your sense of humor, and especially for the parts of yourselves that went into this book, thank you all very, very much. Mr. Mac, I'm particularly grateful for all your personal advice and for not losing your confidence in a "woman editor." And finally, a very special thanks for everything—from the encouragement, the ideas, the enthusiasm and the sympathy to the whiskey sours, the laundry runs, the car keys and the insults—to four very unforgettable friends: Jack, Dick, Roger and John. Thank you.

To the readers—this is your book, too, since you have all helped to shape this year and are as responsible for it as it is for the changes in yourselves. I hope that opening the 1970 Wolverine many years from now will bring back only pleasant memories, and that the future will show that we have all done a good job.
